FROM THE DELAWARE RESTAURANT ASSOCIATION-- Potential Breach of Credit Card Information

The Delaware Restaurant Association is responding to reports from their members that there may have been a breach of consumer credit card information in Delaware. Initial reports and emails show that the breach may have been linked to the remote access software LogMeIn, typically used in conjunction with restaurant POS systems.

You can visit PCI compliance standards. The DRA specifically asks that you exercise extreme caution when using remote access and ensure that an individual or company not have access without two-factor authentication. We will continue to report any information that is provided to the Chamber.

Please call the Delaware Restaurant Association office at (302)738-2545 for more information or, use the following links:
